

Educational Visit to a School and NGO for Children with Special Needs

To provide experiential learning and enhance students' understanding of inclusive education and child development, the Department organized an educational visit for the students of B.A. Programme – Human Development and Family Empowerment to a school and a non-governmental organization (NGO) working for children with special needs.

During the visit, students interacted with children having diverse developmental and learning needs and gained first-hand exposure to the educational practices, therapeutic interventions, and support services provided by the institutions. The visit enabled them to understand the challenges faced by children with disabilities, the importance of inclusive education, and the role of caregivers, teachers, and rehabilitation professionals in supporting their overall development.

The interaction with children and professionals helped students develop empathy, compassion, sensitivity, and a deeper appreciation for diversity and inclusion. It also provided them with practical insights into the application of concepts studied in the classroom, thereby strengthening their understanding of human development and family empowerment.

Building upon this learning experience, students of the department have also actively volunteered with NGOs working for the welfare and inclusion of children with disabilities. These outreach initiatives have encouraged students to engage meaningfully with the community while fostering a sense of social responsibility, service, and commitment towards creating an inclusive society.

The visit proved to be an enriching learning experience, equipping students with both academic knowledge and essential life values that will contribute to their personal and professional growth.
